

HAS NO OTHER BURBANK WILL.

CALEB BURBANK'S AFFIDAVITS IN NOW FAMOUS CASE.

Samuel M. Burbank, Who Attempted Suicide, Still Too Weak to Make His Affidavit—Testator Burned a Lot of Papers Last Year, Witnesses Depose.

Additional affidavits were filed with Surrogate Fitzgerald yesterday relating to the contest over the will and estate of Ambrose Hampton Burbank, who died on June 14 last, and whose nephew, Samuel M. Burbank, attempted to commit suicide on Tuesday last by cutting his throat with a penknife in the office of his lawyers, Hawkins & Deland.

The affidavits are made by Caleb A. Burbank, the residuary legatee under the contested will of 1889; Robert W. Burbank, brother of Samuel and Caleb; Mary A. Burbank, a sister; Sarah Burton, with whom Ambrose B. Burbank lived for years, and Emma L. Lake, wife of Walter H. Lake, who also lived with the aged testator. The general tenor of the affidavits is in refutation of the claim made by the eighty-two contestants, nephews and cousins, that a later will existed, made in 1897, which did not give the residuary estate to Caleb H. Burbank, but did mention specifically a large number of the contestants.

Caleb A. Burbank's affidavit recites that his uncle Ambrose was a great interest in him and paid for his school and college education. Caleb was graduated from Brown University in 1878. He says he lived on intimate terms and in the same house with his uncle for several years, but never knew of the existence of any later will. Caleb A. Burbank says that he was even ignorant of the execution of the will of 1889, which made him residuary legatee, until his uncle showed it to him some years later and conversed with him concerning its terms.

He adds that he has not now, and never had, in his possession any papers or documents relating to any other will, such as the contestants have moved the Court to order him to produce.

Of Mrs. Mary Newcomb, widow of E. R. Newcomb, the testator's favorite nephew, Caleb A. Burbank says that she always claimed that his uncle took more interest in her than in any other member of the family and that she has been the most active person back of the will contest proceedings. He knows nothing of any papers such as would tend to establish her claim to $100,000 worth of bonds, which she says Ambrose gave her a bill of sale of.

Robert W. Burbank of Providence, R. I., an attorney, says that in 1892 Ambrose B. Burbank asked him to induce Caleb to come on to New York to take care of him in his old age. Caleb did come and lived with the old man on the most friendly terms, Robert says, and Ambrose told Robert that he intended to give the greater part of his estate to Caleb.

Sarah Burton, in whose house, 45 East Ninth street, the old man lived for years, swears that she had frequent talks with Ambrose concerning Mrs. Newcomb, who repeatedly urged the old man to make a will in 1892. She says that she told her that he intended to burn a lot of legal documents, old papers and other rubbish, and on obtaining her assent he went down to her kitchen and burned them himself. What they were, she says, she does not know.

Mary A. Burbank also makes affidavit that her uncle had told her in 1903 that Mrs. Newcomb wanted him to make a will in her favor, but that he had held out against her urging.

Mrs. Emma L. Lake's affidavit is to a similar effect, save that she goes further in saying that old Ambrose disliked to have Mrs. Newcomb call on him, though she persisted in doing so. Mrs. Lake says that she burned a quantity of his private papers, but that many other papers belonging to him were thrown away by Samuel M. Burbank, who is still in Bellevue, and the absence of an affidavit from him is explained by a doctor's certificate to the effect that he is too weak to be seen on business matters.

WANT A SIXTH AVENUE TUNNEL.

Dry Goods Men Don't Care to Wait Till the City Builds One.

Representatives of all the Sixth avenue dry goods stores attended yesterday's meeting of the Rapid Transit Commission to protest against the proposal to divert the New York and Jersey company's tunnel extension from Sixth avenue to Ninth street.

The commission has declined to let the tunnel be built under Sixth avenue, because it would prevent the city from using that avenue for a municipal subway.

After the speakers for the Sixth avenue stores had been heard, Commissioner Clafin said that he objected to the scheme to take the tunnel away from Sixth avenue. "There is no reasonable prospect," he said, "of an underground railroad being laid out along Sixth avenue for years to come. People will not want to transfer from the tunnel to the Sixth avenue line."

President Orr insisted that Sixth avenue ought to be retained by the city.

"Do you think there will be a Sixth avenue line built within thirty years?" asked Mr. Clafin.

"Yes, in less than ten," interposed Charles Stewart Smith, while Comptroller Groat said that traffic conditions would require the building of a new subway trunk line on Sixth avenue before thirty years. Mr. Clafin said he could not vote for the franchise, anyway, because he was interested in property on Sixth avenue. He would pass the franchise required six votes, and without Mr. Clafin's there were only five votes present. Another meeting will be held next week, when the Mayor and Morris K. Jessup will be asked to attend.

MOBBED AT HIS WEDDING.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., June 16.—While the Rev. Everett F. Sniffen, an Episcopal clergyman, and his bride, Miss Elizabeth Bounds of Bridgeport, were leaving Christ Episcopal Church in Stratford after their marriage ceremony last evening they were mobbed by a gang of toughs, who threw old shoes, showered them with flowers and squirted water at them from syringes.

The authorities have learned that the attacking party came from what is known as the East End of Bridgeport. It was originally intended to have the ceremony performed at St. Luke's church here, but, fearing annoyance from toughs, Christ Church in Stratford, where Mr. Sniffen is curate, was selected. The change incensed the gang.

When the bridal party left the church the onslaught began. The groom retreated with his assistants and appealed to their manhood, but they only took advantage of his delay. He was finally driven into his carriage.

Baby Born With Eight Teeth.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., June 16.—A girl baby born at the hospital here a few days ago has eight perfect teeth, four in the upper and four in the lower jaw in front. She weighed seven pounds at birth and is gaining steadily. There are as yet no indications of more teeth. The baby is the child of Theodore B. Zolle, a machinist.

Bankmaster Incess Free of Debts.

Frederick N. Inness, the well known bandmaster, got a discharge from bankruptcy yesterday from Judge Holt of the United States District Court. He filed a petition in bankruptcy on June 18, 1902, and his schedules showed liabilities $10,028 and no assets.

COSTS $10 TO STONE AUTOS.

"It's Bread Out of Their Mouths," Says Mother of One Mischievous Boy.

Dr. Clifford A. Moore of 110 Lenox avenue went to the West Forty-seventh street police station in his automobile Wednesday night and asked that a couple of policemen be sent out with him.

"I have been stoned several times of late," he said. "It might happen that a stone would disable me or blind me and then my automobile would run wild. Some one besides myself might be hurt."

Detectives Ray and England got in the back seat of the automobile and the party started out to look for offenders. All went well until they got to Eighth avenue and Fifty-first street. Then one of the detectives got hit on the head with a potato. His companion jumped out and arrested Richard White, 15 years old, of 555 West Fifty-first street as the culprit.

After the boy had been looked up in the station house the trio started out again. At Fifty-second street a small boy threw a lasso so well that it landed around one of the automobile lamps. When the boy was nabbed he said he was William Krakek, 13 years old, of 410 West Fifty-second street. The potato slipped," said young White, when he was arrested yesterday in the Children's Court. "I didn't throw it. It just slipped and hit the man."

"I didn't do it, Judge, your Honor," said young Krakek. "I was just practicing. I was going to throw it right over the top of the car and it would take it right over the top of the car."

"You beat the other boy at stories," said the Justice. "I took you $10 each."

"It's taking bread out of the children's mouths to pay this," said one of the mothers, as she paid the fine.

"Then let them serve it out," replied the Court. "It will do them good. This practice of throwing things at automobiles will be stopped if anything that I can do will do it."

MORTON HOUSE MEN GO BROKE.

Nugent and Jackson in Bankruptcy—Suing for Damage by Subway.

A petition in bankruptcy was filed yesterday against John R. Nugent and Henry J. Jackson, Jr. (Nugent & Jackson), proprietors of the Morton House, the old established hotel at the corner of Fourteenth street and Broadway. Lester A. Jackson, filed it as attorneys for Thomas F. Hickey, a creditor, for $732 on an assigned claim for fish and oysters sold to the firm two years ago. Judge Holt of the United States District Court appointed Ferdinand A. Holt receiver of the assets, fixing his bond at $7,500, as it was stated that the assets are at least $15,000.

Lesser Bros. said that they understood the firm had given a chattel mortgage to the landlord of the hotel for $10,000 for rent. They estimate the liabilities at $30,000 to $40,000, of which $10,000 is for supplies, some of the bills being several years old.

One cause of the trouble is said to be the excavations for the subway, which cut off a good deal of trade. It is said that the firm has sued the subway contractors for damages.

The Morton House has been a Broadway landmark for more than twenty-five years. Sheridan Shook was the proprietor for two years from December, 1889. On June 1, 1894, the firm became Shook, Nugent & Co., who were succeeded on Dec. 1, 1895, by the present firm of Nugent & Jackson. Col. Nugent had previously been a Coroner.

Mr. Jackson is his son-in-law. It is said they paid Mr. Shook $20,000 for his interest in the place. The annual rent is said to be $40,000.

BURNED WRECKAGE FOUND.

Probably Came From a Ship Which Had Been on Fire—No Disaster Reported.

NORFOLK, Va., June 16.—A quantity of burned wreckage, including what appeared to be cabin furniture, was washed ashore between the False Cape and Currituck life saving stations yesterday and today. An off-shore wind today kept much of the wreckage which was seen floating in the distance from coming ashore. Two bodies came ashore today, which looked as if they had been in the fire and broken to pieces.

There is nothing to identify the vessel from which the wreckage came except a passenger check of the Ocean Steamship Company, marked "Savannah, Ga., No. 1047," which was found yesterday and is regarded here as probable that there has been a fire aboard some ship and the things drifting ashore have been thrown overboard. It is believed that the wreckage was a vessel which had been on fire and broken to pieces.

The statement was made at the office of the Ocean Steamship Company of Savannah in this city yesterday that every one of the ten vessels was in good and safe. A similar statement was made by the officers of the Clyde Line.

RETRIAL AFTER FIVE YEARS.

Queer Legacy of Roosevelt Regime at Police Headquarters.

Among the seventy policemen on trial before Deputy Commissioner Lindsay at Police Headquarters yesterday, William W. C. O'Connor on a complaint made against him on Jan. 14, 1899. O'Connor was at that time attached to the Union Market station. He was charged with having been in the rear room of a laundry. He was tried by the Roosevelt board and dismissed from the force.

By an act of the Legislature O'Connor got a retrial. President Roosevelt, then Governor, signed the bill. At the retrial yesterday O'Connor was fined three days pay and was reinstated on the force.

FIVE MEN DROWNED.

Their Boats Were Capsized in Peoplar Rapids, Canada.

ODENBURG, N. Y., June 16.—Three men were drowned in Peoplar Rapids, Canada, yesterday. Fifteen rivermen were coming down the rapids with a drive and were all in one small boat. In some way the boat was capsized and the occupants were hurled into the swift water. Gordon McDonald, 10 years of age, of Janesville; Joseph Morin, 10 years of age, of Ottawa, and young M. A. Chamberland and a man of the name of Carboneau of Maddington Falls were among the victims. The place is known as a "skiff," a heavy wind capsized the boat and both men were drowned.

Cadets Go Into Camp for the Summer.

WISER POINT, June 16.—The first and third classes of cadets at the United States Military Academy at West Point, N. Y., are now in camp for the summer. The new fourth class, which was admitted to the Military Academy to-day, will not be permitted to enter camp until all are properly uniformed. The summer camp has been named Camp Forde, in honor of the memory of Major Albert Gallatin Forde of the class of '68, who, while commanding the second squadron of the First Cavalry, was killed in action on July 1, 1898, at San Juan Hill, Santiago, Cuba.

Among the candidates who have qualified and reported for admission to the Military Academy as cadets are: Arthur E. Bouton, James F. Curry, James H. H. Bouton, and Fred H. H. Bouton. The candidates are at the Hotel Hamilton in New York City.

State Cavalry for Army Maneuvers.

ALBANY, June 16.—Two troops of cavalry, in number not exceeding seventy-five officers and men each, who shall be detailed from Squadron A and Troop C, have been designated by the Governor to participate in the joint army and militia maneuvers at West Point, N. Y., next. These two troops are in addition to the organizations heretofore designated to attend the maneuvers from this State.

CANNON GETS THE LAW'S LIMIT

FIFTEEN YEARS AND $1,000 FINE FOR THE HOBOKEN LAWYER.

Must Have Been Totally Depraved, Says the Court, or Else Out of His Mind—The $10,000 Bail to Stand During Pendency of a Stay on Writ of Error.

Charles K. Cannon, the wealthy Hoboken lawyer, was sentenced by Judge John A. Blair in Jersey City yesterday afternoon to serve a term of fifteen years in the State prison at Trenton and to pay a fine of $1,000. This is the extreme penalty under the law for the high misdemeanor of which a jury found him guilty on charges preferred by Carrie Albrecht, a thirteen-year-old newsgirl.

Cannon spent half an hour in the court room listening to the trial of a Hoboken Italian, accused of a similar crime, and then when his name was called walked to the bar without any apparent evidence of agitation.

Judge Blair in imposing sentence said it was the most painful and distressing duty the Court had ever had to discharge.

"A man of your age, of your profession, of your family, of your surroundings, and of your means to have been charged and convicted of such a charge as you have been convicted of," said Judge Blair, "seems almost incomprehensible. It would be entirely incomprehensible and unbelievable if the jury had not determined the fact to be true after a thorough trial."

"There is no means of accounting for the case except on the grounds that you are totally depraved, or else that you were out of your mind and did not appreciate what you were doing. There is nothing before the Court, however, to indicate or prove that you were not of mental soundness. Therefore the Court must deal with you as though you were mentally sound and appreciate the dreadful thing you were doing."

Cannon's counsel, ex-Judge William T. Hoffman and ex-Assessorman John J. Hoffman, took a writ of error, which acts as a stay, Judge Blair granted them a week in which to prepare their papers and said that Cannon's bail, $10,000 in cash, which was furnished soon after his arrest, would be allowed to stand. The concerned lawyer left the court room accompanied by his only son, a man of 23. It is understood that in the event of a failure to have the conviction set aside the lawyers will, on behalf of Cannon's son and daughter apply for the appointment of a commission to pass upon the question of his sanity.

The concerned lawyer has heretofore been considered one of the most distinguished citizens of Hoboken. He is a Supreme Court Commissioner, a Master in Chancery and ranked high in his profession. He is a vestryman in an Episcopal church, a bank director and a club man. He is reputed to be worth a quarter of a million dollars.

Joseph Bruno, Giuseppe Sattosati and Salvatore Muriello, Hoboken Italians, were convicted yesterday on charges preferred by the small girl who were in the habit of visiting Cannon's office.

Charles Reinhardt, who was arrested at the time of the sensational disclosures, retracted his former plea of not guilty and pleaded non vult, that he did not wish to make defense.

New Home for Music School Settlement. FELL FROM WHEEL UNDER CAR.

Biocyclist Seriously Hurt on Bridge—Taken to Hospital With a Dead Man.

Albert Luhrs, 18 years old, of 144 Driggs avenue, Brooklyn, fell from a bicycle while riding down the north roadway at the Manhattan end of the Brooklyn Bridge yesterday, directly in front of a DeKalb avenue car. One of the front wheels of the car crushed him, but did not go over him.

Luhrs was riding down the incline, and directly in front of him was a truck. He wanted to get ahead of the slow moving truck and rode between it and the car. His wheel bumped into the forward part of the truck and when it swerved Luhrs pitched over the handle bars in front of the car.

When the car stopped Luhrs's body was dragged from under it without much trouble. He was carried to the temporary hospital at this end of the Bridge, and the accident caused little delay to traffic. Later he was taken to the Hudson street hospital. His condition is serious.

Just about the time Luhrs was hurt, a man lost his life in Centre street opposite the Bridge entrance. He was an Italian laborer said to be working in the subway. He came in contact with a feed rail and was killed instantly. An ambulance was called from the Hudson street hospital. Dr. Rushmore came with the ambulance. He was helping to put the dead man's body in it when a Bridge policeman told him of the accident on the Bridge. Luhrs was placed beside the dead man in the ambulance and hurried to the hospital.

The police could learn little about the Italian as he fell few workers said his name was Maine Reine and that he was 27 years old.

The motorman of the DeKalb avenue car that hit Luhrs was taken to the Tombs police court and held to await the result of Luhrs's injuries.

CREW WATCHED VESSEL BURN.

A French Fishing Boat Destroyed off the Grand Banks.

GLoucester, Mass., June 16.—Capt. Lemuel Spinney of the schooner Dictator, which arrived yesterday from a halibut trip to the Grand Banks, reported that he encountered the French "banker," the Marie Antoinette, on June 8, about fifteen miles off St. Lawrence, N. B., enveloped in flames.

The crew of the vessel were nearby in boats, which were laden with all their goods and a stock of food. They said the vessel caught fire in the foremast while they were at the outer end of their trawl, and by the time they got aboard the flames couldn't be checked.

Capt. Spinney offered to land the French men at the nearest port, but as the weather was good and land only fifteen miles away they preferred to watch the burning vessel. When her destruction was complete they said they would make for the nearest land.

Town Attends Murder Trial.

Business Suspended While a Fend KILLS Is Aired in Court.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 16.—Business in the town of Richards, a trading centre south of here, in Vernon county, is entirely suspended while the trial of Dr. T. J. Todd, charged with the murder of Robert Wall, is in progress. There are no witnesses to the murder, including practically every business man in Richards.

The interest in the case is intense, because of the bitter feud which led up to the killing and in which the whole town, more or less, is on one side or the other. The State charges that Todd shot Wall in cold blood as he rode down the street in a buggy.
